We determined who would receive funds and the amount using the following:

To determination students with exceptional need, and to determine the amounts to be distributed, we used estimated family contributions (EFC). This means that we prioritized students who completed the FASFA, since those students are traditionally those with the greatest need on our campus. We are also aware that students who did not complete the FASFA also have higher than anticipated needs at this time; and we included them as well. We included both undergraduate and graduate students who were enrolled in at least 3 credit hours in Fall 2021. We defined exceptional need as those with an EFC of 0-$99, and prioritized undergraduate students first, with the highest amount of $2000 awarded to students with an EFC in that bracket, and the next highest amount of $1700.00 to graduate students in that bracket. The remaining tiers combined undergraduate and graduate students.

Band 1, Undergraduate Estimated Family Contribution of $0 - $99: $2,000

Band 1 Graduate Estimated Family Contribution of $0 - $99: $1,700

Band 2, Estimated Family Contribution of $100 - $5846: $1,500

Band 3, Estimated Family Contribution of $5847 - $15,000: $1,000

Band 4, Estimated Family Contribution of $15,002-20,000: $750

Band 5, Estimated Family Contribution of greater than $20,000: $500

Band 6, No FAFSA on file: $500
